Senate Presidency: Albro vs. Sargent in run-off Tuesday

Peter Albro and Kim Sargent will compete in a run-off election for Student Senate President this Tuesday in chapel. The two defeated Jim Willse in last Tuesday's election.

Tom Deyle will face John Partridge in a run-off election for junior class president, while Pat Cleary, Doug Cooper, and Mike Johnson will compete in a run-off election for sophomore class president. Both elections will be held Tuesday.

Albro, in his platform, advocated clearer definition of rushing regulations, re-evaluation of Total Opportunity and and maintenance of in influence over the Campus Center.

Sargent, in his platform, expressed concern for the Student Senate budget, advocated that the Social Committee be directly accountable to the Student Senate, and proposed a complete study of the athletic program.

Nichols heads 'Spectator' Staff

K. Guild Nichols, Jr., was elected editor-in-chief of the Hamilton Spectator Monday night and approved by the Publications Board late Tuesday afternoon. He and the rest of the new editorial board will assume their duties with the next issue, to be published on the Friday after spring recess.

Retiring editor-in-chief Bruce Lambert, Jr., announced other major appointments at a second meeting of the staff Tuesday night. Albert C. (Skip) Patterson will become executive editor, and Joseph H. Willner will be the new managing editor.

All three appointees are English majors and members of the Class of 1966. Nichols edited this year's humor issue and worked last summer on the Patriot Ledger in Quincy, Mass., under a grant from the Newspaper Fund, Inc., and belongs to the Root-Jessup Public Affairs Council and the Emerson Literary Society. Patterson is technical director of the Charlatans, has worked in a printing shop, and is a member of the Social Committee and Alpha Delta Phi. Willner was an editor of this year's humor issue and is an Independent. All three have been assistant editors on the Spectator this past year.

Associate editors include J. Don Drumm '65, who will continue as news editor and will be succeeded in September by Thomas W. (Tad) Herlihy '66, now in France, and Lambert, who will serve as layout editor for the rest of the year. Five other juniors were appointed associate editor: Thomas C. Crane, Richard L. Edelson, James G. Meade, and James R. Stear, who is spending the year studying in Spain, will be copy editors. James P. Willse will continue as arts and entertainment editor.

JUNIORS TAKE OVER EDITORIAL BOARD — Seated: Nichols, Patterson, Willner. Standing: Crane, Edelson, Meade, Willse. Away on junior year abroad program: Herlihy, Stear.

Leonard L. Cavise, John S. Gordon, Michael C. Lang, Bruce W. Sanford, and Daniel M. Siegel, all sophomores, complete the new editorial board as assistant editors.

If your roommate says the Bell System helped invent hi-fi, stereo and talking movies, don't bet. You'll lose.

In the course of their studies of the nature of sound, Bell System scientists have been able to make significant contributions to all three forms of entertainment.

You might say that it was because the discoveries were there to be discovered by the first explorers to come down the trail.

When the century was still young, we realized that if the telephone were to come up to its potential, the nature of sound had to be much better understood than it was then.

This led to the largest, most comprehensive study of sound ever undertaken by anyone.

To capture sound for study, Bell Telephone Laboratories developed the first electronic recorder for phonograph discs. For the first time, performers recorded into microphones.

Then, in 1925, Bell Labs perfected an electronic system that synchronized sound and action on movie film. The talkies were born.

To get better sound reproduction, they started experimenting in 1933 with ways to separate high and low frequencies to prevent distortion. The result was a single-groove, multi-channel disc—the basis of today's stereophonic industry.

Nevertheless, these contributions were by-products of the real effort, which was to make telephone service better. We are proud, of course, that they helped build and improve whole industries.

But we're prouder of the sound qualities in the telephone of today.

If you'd like to do business or engineering work you're really proud of, we'd like to talk to you.

First amendment wins easily; second barely misses passage

In a referendum at Tuesday chapel, the first of two changes proposed by the Honor Court was passed. "The Honor Court was hoping for passage of both amendments, but is very happy that at least the first was passed," Carl Bianchi, chairman of the Court, said.

The two changes proposed were (1) to allow the Court to suspend as well as expel convicted upperclassmen and (2) to place written work in all courses under the jurisdiction of the Houor Court.

Of the 513 students who voted, 95.1 percent voted in favor of proposal one; 70.2 percent voted in favor of proposal two which missed passing by 4.8 percent.

For the first amendment to be added to the Honor System, it must be ratified by the faculty. "Ratification by the faculty is usually a matter of course, and this amendment should make a more humane honor system," Bianchi said.

Editorial Board...

Appointed to the managing board were Harold A. Mackinder '67, business manager; Michael R. Sorrell '67, advertising manager; and Terrance D. Brooks '66, circulation manager. The members of the photography board will be Richard J. Edmonds '66, manager; Henry E. Wyman '68, technician; and Birch M. Mullins '66, supplier. The remainder of the paper's workers were appointed to the general staff but are eligible for promotions at any time.

Discussing the new staff, Lambert said, "The paper has never had as many seniors working on it as it will next year. All have good potential. The new organization of the staff, the experience of running the paper for the spring, the addition of the two juniors now abroad, and the new office in the Campus Center can make the 1965-66 Spectator the best ever."

At the Publications Board meeting Tuesday, Lambert proposed a budget increase from $6,400 to $10,400 for 1965-66. The budget would allow for 58 four-page issues to be published during 34 weeks of the year instead of the present schedule of 24 weekly eight-page issues.

Some of the requested increase would come from more advertising and subscriptions, but most would come from an approximate $4 allotment of the $50 increase per student in the overall fee which will be charged by the college next year.
